

Growing Change “Prison Flip” Web Promotional Video

Video	Audio
1. EXT SHOTS OF PRISON SITE	NORAN (off cam): You don’t think of old prisons as places to inspire hope, but at Growing Change dot org one closed prison in rural North Carolina will flip lives.
2. GC GROUP. CODY STANDS IN FOREGROUND	CODY: Everyone in our youth pilot program was involved with juvenile justice and was headed to prison. Through our group we’ve reversed that future; we’ve flipped our prisons.
3. GC GROUP. TERRENCE STEPS FORWARD.	TERRENCE: Yeah. Now we’re community leaders, feeding the hungry, providing education about
4. CU TERRENCE.	sustainable agriculture, and starting our own businesses.
5. CU SCOTTIE IN FRONT OF GROUP.	SCOTTIE: We are flipping this prison in Wagram North Carolina into a sustainable farm and education center so that our program can help others kids who need help... just like we did.
6. LS TERRENCE IN DRAIN FIELD	TERRENCE: We’re going to flip this drain field into the largest vermiculture bed in the region.
7. LS SCOTTIE IN PRISON FIELD	SCOTTIE: We’re going to convert this P-T field into a sports and recreation area.
8. LS DEREK BY OLD TANK	DEREK: These old tanks will become biofuel production labs.
9. CARLOS IN GUARD TOWER	CARLOS: This guard tower will become a climbing wall, repelling station, and water tower.

Growing Change "Prison Flip" Web Promotional Video

Video	Audio
10. LS CODY INSIDE OF CELL	CODY: We're going to flip the front cell block into fish tanks that pump their waste...
11. LS JAROD AT FRONT	JAROD: ... into an aquaponic greenhouse that will filter and recycle the water back into the fish
12. GRAPHIC: "growingchange.org" with logo.
13. MS GROUP. NORAN STEPS IN FRONT OF GROUP.	NORAN: I'm Noran Sanford, founder of Growing Change dot org. Our goal is to flip closed prisons, the most prominent environmental hazards in many rural counties, into valuable resource centers that will serve the whole community; providing programs for troubled youth, residential college internships for veterans, and wellness programming for our region. To learn more about ways that you can help, please visit our website --- growing change dot org. Thank you.